

Featherboard for the rip fence – this is the result. By Rod Kirby

I remembered that I had bought (years ago) a Woodhaven “Hold Down” (still available: part# 211, page 21 in their Fall 1999 catalog $17.99). Everything you see (except the knobs/washers, tee nuts & wood) is supplied by Woodhaven. All you have to do is make the wooden support – it’s a snap!

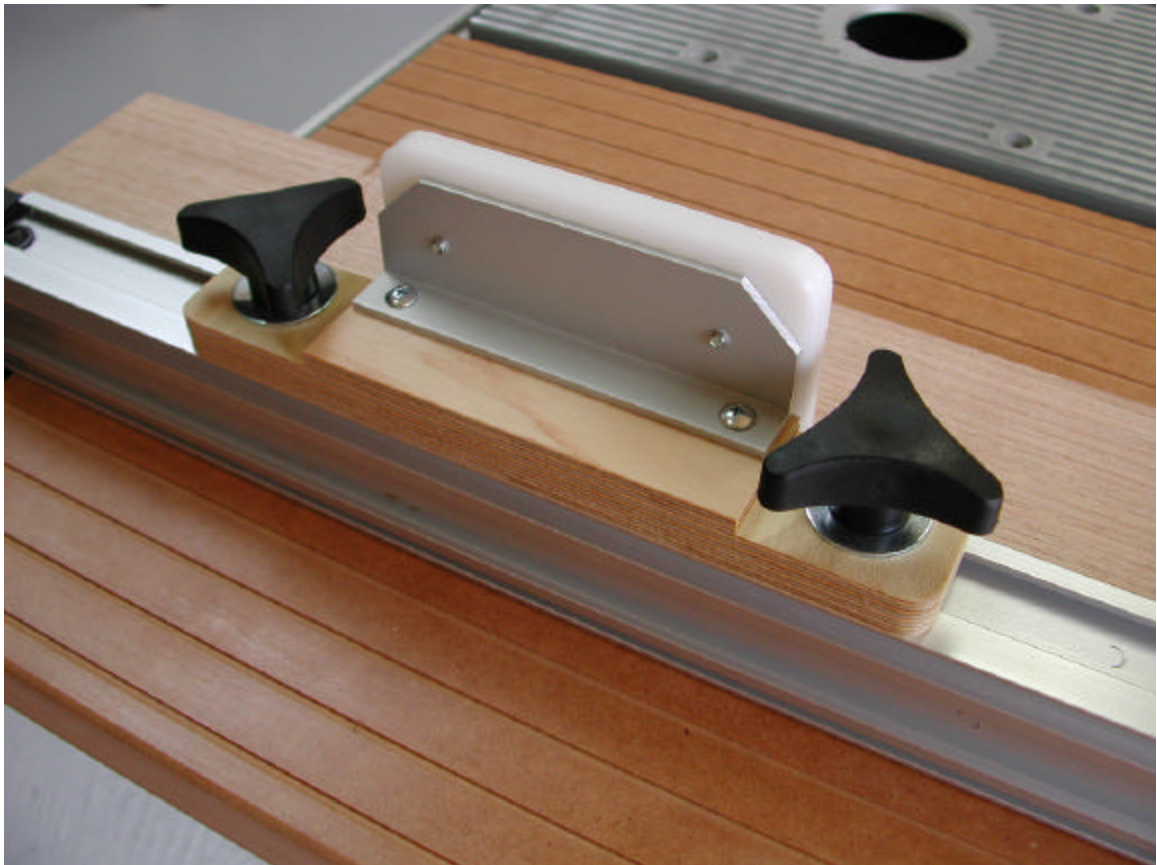

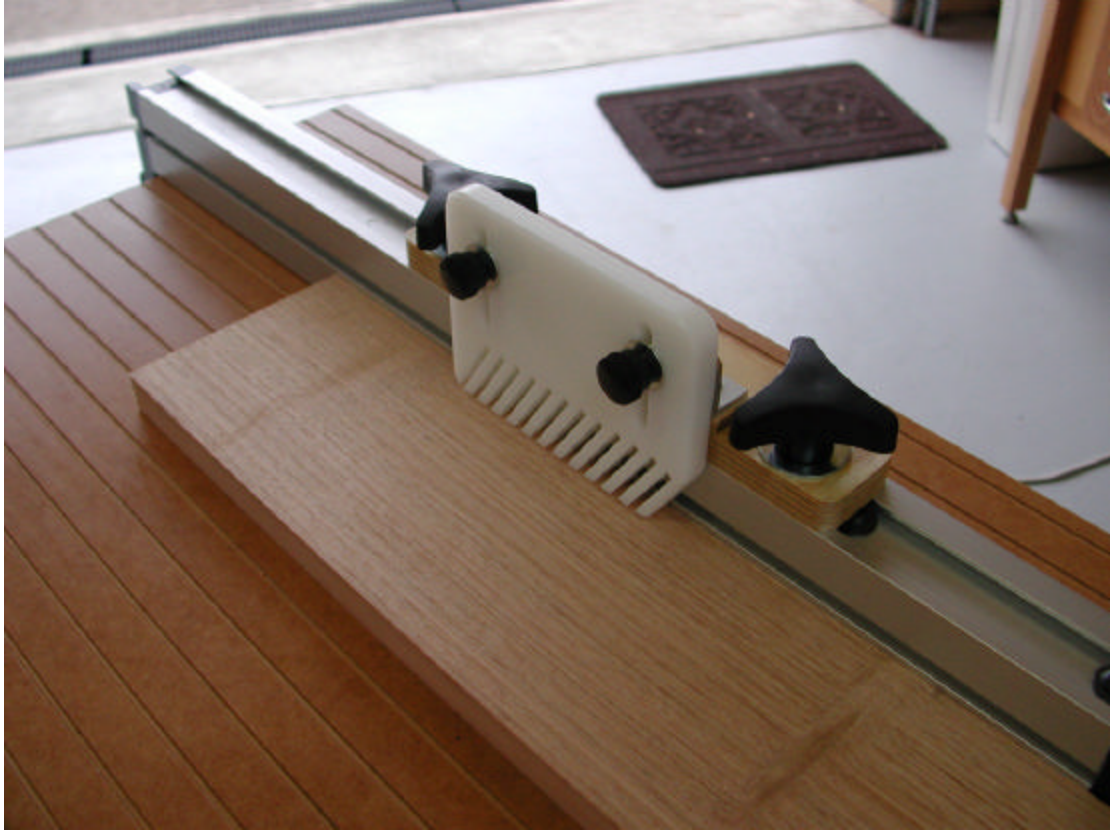

For the jig freaks, I’ve included pics of a half lap router jig – makes cutting them very precise.

The reason for the half laps is to adjust the thickness for the length of the knob studs (and length, to allow the KNOBS to turn). The studs need enough to “grab” the tee nut, but not so long that they “bottom out” on the rip fence.

I’ve also included a pic of a modified (“teeth” cut off) hold down that I use for a drill press fence stop.

...of table saw fence and a degree of safety and surface clamber for a better cut. They are made of a soft, high density plastic, so some work will slide through easily. These are guaranteed not to break and are easier to attach and adjust than homemade ones. Use on router tables, table saws and more.

Hold-Down includes a bracket, featherboard and hardware. Attaches to our Standard or Deluxe fence and on a 2" tall fence it holds work up to 1-1/2" thick.

The Hold-In includes a bracket, featherboard and hardware. It attaches to a 3/4" thick wood fence that you provide, see plastic and on 1/2" above the table. The #201 Clamps, shown, are for a 1" to 1-1/2" thick table. The #202 Clamps are for a 1-1/2" to 1-3/4" thick table. Order clamps separately. See below.
